The online Executive Master in International Law in Armed Conflict is one of the few part-time, innovative and intellectually challenging programmes in the law of armed conflict offered today.

Designed for professionals with demanding jobs and responsibilities, it provides them with a solid legal background to address the multiple challenges that arise in humanitarian emergencies, human rights negotiations or criminal proceedings.

Courses cover international law, international humanitarian law (IHL), international human rights law (IHRL), international criminal law (ICL) and the interplay between them. They also address current issues and challenges, including the repression of terrorism, accountability for atrocity crimes and international refugee law.

Taught by Geneva-based law professors and world-renowned law experts and professors, the programme enables participants to gain specialized knowledge directly applicable to professional work.

Diplomats, lawyers, legal advisers, NGO staff, human rights advocates, professionals working in emergency situations, UN staff and staff from other international organizations share expertise, discuss pressing concerns and reflect on the application of international law to their work.

DURATION AND KEY MILESTONES

- Nine months of classes (October to June) and six months to write a master's paper.
- From Wednesdays to Fridays at lunchtime (12:00 –14:00 CET)

ONLINE

Our Executive Master in International law in Armed Conflict takes place entirely online (courses, exams, as well as the writing and defence of the master's paper).

An easy and interactive platform allows them to interact directly with professors and other participants during classes and access all the courses' materials and readings. In case a participant is unable to follow a specific class, she/he can watch the recordings afterwards.
